

Kinship Workshop and Photo Walks Release of Liability

Here's the liability, release and waiver, in human language

If you participate in a photography workshop or photo walk, you are agreeing to the following:

1. I am taking this workshop or photo walk voluntarily and am in good health.
2. I understand there are risks to walking in public.
3. I accept personal responsibility for anything that happens to me, like if I get hurt or lose something.
4. I release the Kinship Photography Collective and LivLab and anyone working for it, including contractors, from any claims or liability for damages.
5. If something bad happens to me during the tour, it's not Kinship Photography Collective's and LivLab's fault.
6. If part of this waiver is deemed to be invalid or unenforceable, it doesn't mean the whole thing is.
7. If I agreed to it, Kinship Photography Collective staff can take photos and video during the workshops and photo walks and can use my image, likeness, recordings of me in any format to promote events or any other way they like without having to pay me anything for it, ever.
8. If I get hurt or need medical attention, Kinship Photography Collective instructors can arrange it, but it's not their duty to do so.

Here's the liability, release and waiver in legalese. You should read it.
